Picking a Location With Danville Zoning

Zoning regulates land use in and around the City of Danville. There are requirements for what kinds of businesses are allowed where as well as requirements for signs, lighting, screening, and building form, and other land use impacts.

The City’s business supporting zoning districts include,

(P-1) Professional Office District: Provides for the establishment of office developments on various scales that serve the specialized care and professional service needs of the community.

(B-1) Neighborhood Business District: Provides for the establishment of low intensity service and retail developments facilitating commercial activity serving adjacent neighborhoods.

(B-2) Highway Business District: Provides for the establishment of medium sized, low intensity commercial development along highway traffic corridors primarily served by automobile traffic.

(B-3) General Business District: Provides for the establishment of medium and large scale commercial development which serves the whole community and sometimes the region.

(B-4) Central Business District: Covers a central area in the community that functions as a commerce and activity hub for the community. Pedestrian oriented and densely developed while providing for retail, professional, entertainment and residential uses.

(I-1) Light Industrial District: Provides for the establishment of less intensive, low to medium, areas of industrial development.

(I-2) General Industrial District: Provides for the establishment of large scale, higher intensity, industrial manufacturing, processing, fabricating, assembling or warehouse.

Each zone has specific uses which are allowed to operate. If your lot does not meet the requirements of the zone where it is located you may be able to change the zoning or receive a variance. If your use requires special use approval, you must start the process to receive a special use permit.

Re-Zoning: A public process by which the zoning of a parcel is changed usually completed to allow a new use in the area.

Variances: A variance is a deviation from the set rules defined in the local zoning ordinance. Most often used in cases of building dimensions or setbacks.

Special Uses: Some zones only allow a certain use if a special use permit is approved. This is usually done in cases in which a use might be compatible with the surrounding area but it depends on the design of that particular building or land use. Receiving a special use permit requires a public process and review to ensure compatibility.

To determine the zoning of a property please contact the Urban Services Department or you can search the zoning map on the City’s website under the business tab. Once you know the zoning of your lot you can read the City of Danville Zoning Ordinance from the link on also under the business tab. The zoning code is Chapter 150 under Title XV Land Use. Appendix A contains a specific list of all allowed land uses per zone.

To read the full zoning ordinance, see an interactive map, or for more information, call us at (217) 431-2321 email us at lrubinson@cityofdanville.org or visit our website www.cityofdanville.org/economic-development.html

To do: Ensure that your business type is allowed in the zoning district where you are located.

Cost: None unless rezoning, variance, or special use permits are required.
Building Inspections

In most circumstances, to begin operating your business you must obtain a Certificate of Occupancy. A Certificate of Occupancy states that the building in which you plan to operate meets all state and local building, plumbing, electrical, zoning, and fire safety codes. As a new tenant or owner of a building, you are required to work with City inspectors to identify and correct any code violations on your property. We encourage you to contact the City of Danville Urban Services Department and schedule a walk-through of the property prior to any purchase negotiations. This way you are aware of what potential required changes before you move in. This service is free and can be scheduled by calling us at (217) 431-2321.

To do: Call us at (217) 431-2321 to set up inspections or receive a Certificate of Occupancy

Cost: None
Building and Construction Permits

City Codes require you to obtain permits for building and construction work. This is to ensure that the work completed will be safe for you, your contractor, and your future patrons. Permits are required for most forms of building, electrical, mechanical, and plumbing work. The City also requires permits for new sign structures (not new sign faces), concrete work in the public right of way and excavation in the right-of-way.

You can review a full list of tasks that require permits under the business tab on the City’s website.

Home Businesses
Are you operating your business out of your home? Great! There are a few simple steps you and the City must take to ensure that there is not a significant disturbance to your neighbors that might negatively affect their property values.

Home based business are considered home occupations in the zoning ordinance and some require a permit if considered a major home occupation. Minor home occupations are allowed by right in any zone, major home occupations require a special use permit in residential zones. Minor home occupations allow for only residents as employees, do not permit advertising, and are primarily for the fields of art, crafts, religion, and business if no sales transactions occur on site. Major home occupations allow for an employee who does not live in the house, a small wall sign, and uses including hair and beauty parlors, classes, small engine repair (excluding automobile repair). Check the full zoning ordinance for details and contact the zoning administrator at 217-431-3456 for a permit application if needed.

Health Inspection
Selling food? You will likely need a health inspection to receive an annual food permit. You can receive this from the Vermilion County Health Department which provides an application for the permit. Permit fees range from $350 for high risk restaurants, caterers, and other providers to $200 for low risk establishments. Schools and seasonal businesses have special rates. See the Vermilion County Health Department for more, http://vchd.org/services/food-sanitation/

Area Taxes
The Vermilion County website provides property tax inquiry information about any property. Visit the Vermilion County website www.co.vermillion.il.us and see ‘GIS and Property Tax Information’ or visit http://vermillionil.devenetwedge.com for more information.

As part of Danville’s home rule status, an additional 2.5% sales tax is assessed on top of the IL State Sales Tax and Vermilion County Sales Tax. The City of Danville Finance Department can provide more information.

There are additional forms for motor fuel and multiple locations hotel, alcohol, and food & beverage businesses. If you are operating a business in these categories please complete the specific form at the City’s economic development page under ‘Establish your Business with the City’ or by following this link, http://www.cityofdanville.org/ed---eybwtc.html
